Miami Art Museum Announces Sold Out Ball

Subscriptions for Miami Art Museum's annual Ball are sold out announced MAM Director Suzanne Delehanty. "I'm deeply grateful to the MAM Ball Chairs, Marijean and Rafael Miyar, Beverly and Bill Parker, and Terry and Rob Schechter, for all their hard work in making this Ball a completely-sold-out success. We are delighted by the tremendous response we've had from the people of Miami and look forward to a spectacular event."

"This year the Ball will be held under the stars at Bicentennial Park, the future home of Miami Art Museum," Ball Chair Terry Schechter said. "With catering provided by Barton G; George Tandy's acclaimed Party Band providing the music and a richly layered, oriental flavored décor dotted with subtle water elements, we know this will be an elegant evening. We are tremendously excited at the prospect of the new MAM at Museum Park and believe the Park will provide the Ball's most memorable setting yet. It will be unlike any MAM Ball we have enjoyed before. Not only does the site reflect the beauty of Miami's landscape, it also looks ahead to a landmark building and a sculpture garden for the Miami Art Museum for both citizens and visitors to enjoy as MAM grows."

"Preparations for the MAM Ball are well underway," added Delehanty. "Miamians and Art Basel guests can catch a glimpse of the future as the immense, 24,000 square-foot tent rises on the grounds starting today. We hope the excitement generated by the Ball will continue to flourish as the museum begins to grow on Biscayne Bay."

MAM's annual Ball is one of the most anticipated events of the Miami social calendar. Held traditionally during the first week of December, it now crowns a week of art-related events attended by civic leaders, art patrons, as well as international guests drawn to Miami for Art Basel. Proceeds from the fundraising event provide vital annual support for MAM's programs for the public.
